Conference Proceedings

The proceedings of the First International Symposium on Crusades Studies (Crusades: Medieval Worlds in Conflict, Ashgate, 2010) was a well-received volume. However, the Second International Symposium on Crusade Studies did not generate enough proceedings contributions to make its production worthwhile. We are, however, willing to organize a proceeding volume for the Third International Symposium on Crusade Studies, should there be sufficient interest.

If you are interested in submitting your paper for consideration, please contact Matthew Parker at mparke26@slu.edu by May 31, 2014. Include your name, institution, paper title, and an abstract. Should a “critical mass” form, we will contact you to request a final draft of your paper in June.

About the Crusades Studies Forum

The Crusades Studies Forum was founded shortly after the First International Symposium on Crusade Studies held at Saint Louis University in February 2006. Since then it has hosted more than 40 scholars from around the world and convened more than one hundred times for lectures, seminars, and other events. The only one of its kind in North America, the Crusades Studies Forum is a venue for the presentation of current research, the discussion of recent scholarship, and the exploration of new directions in topics relating to the crusades. All are welcome to attend and participate in the forum. Current and post program information is available at http://crusades.slu.edu.
Saint Louis University is a Jesuit, Catholic university ranked among the top research institutions in the nation. The University fosters the intellectual and character development of 13,500 students on campuses in St. Louis and Madrid, Spain. Founded in 1818, it is the oldest university west of the Mississippi and the second oldest Jesuit university in the United States. The St. Louis campus has been the site of the central administration since 1888, when the Jesuits moved the University from its original downtown campus. Thirteen colleges and schools make up the University campus as well as the Health Sciences Center.

Saint Louis University has a well-established reputation for excellence in Medieval Studies. With more than 40 full-time medievalists on the faculty, the university offers medieval Ph.D. programs in History, English, Theological Studies, and Philosophy. The Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies coordinates, promotes, and supports the activities and research of a diverse array of faculty and graduate students. The CMRS also administers several fellowships for visiting scholars who come to Saint Louis University from around the world. Additionally, the CMRS hosts an annual summer conference for serious Medieval and Early Modern scholarship, the Annual Symposium on Medieval and Renaissance Studies. Scholars from all disciplines are welcome to submit proposals and attend. For more information, visit the website at http://smrs.slu.edu. Saint Louis University is home to the Vatican Film Library, which holds complete copies of more than 37,000 codices in the Biblioteca Apostolica Vaticana. It is an extraordinary resource, unique outside of Rome.
